

World Health Organization

Fact sheet N°193
May 2010

Electromagnetic fields and public health: mobile phones

[...]

In contrast, research has clearly shown an increased risk of road traffic injuries when drivers use mobile phones (either handheld or "hands-free") while driving. In several countries, motorists are prohibited or strongly discouraged from using mobile phones while driving.

[...]

<http://www.who.int/mediacentre/factsheets/fs193/en/print.html>